

Will Try to Keep Leaf Dealers In Supplies of Coal

Federal Authorities Disposed to Protect That Industry During Shortage, Watkins Reports.

Henry B. Watkins has returned from Washington where yesterday with the state advisory committee of the fuel commissioner he appeared before National Fuel Administrator Spencer and Herbert Hoover at which time the Virginia situation was gone

Senator Claude Swanson forsook all other engagements yesterday and remained with the committee being of material assistance to State Fuel Commissioner Alexander Forward.

According to Mr. Watkins the federal authorities believe that numerous industrial concerns will have to close as soon as their present stocks of coal have become exhausted unless present conditions are quickly remedied. By this it is meant that if the coal strike (which has been virtually settled) and the strike of railway shopmen are terminated at once and work resumed, it will be possible to meet domestic and industrial needs.

Mr. Watkins was chiefly interested in the tobacco situation and in securing the promise of coal for leaf concerns which re-dry tobacco. He returns with the virtual assurance that the Virginia tobacco industry will be cared for although tobacco concerns cannot be placed in classes number 1 and 2 on the priority list.

When asked today if the government would protect the consumers from undue elevation of coal prices Mr. Watkins said that the government intended to do what it could but there seems no definite assurance.

that there will be any federal intervention in behalf of the householders. Most of the operators have agreed to abide by Herbert Hoover's "fair price" for coal which is $3 50 per ton at the mines. The government finds it's almost impossible in view of present conditions to ensure the maintenance of contract prices although it will endeavor to do so.

There is therefore a serious menace that the city's coal bill will be greatly increased this winter. Danville has contracts with several coal operators to supply the local utilities with coal at a price of about $1.80 per ton at the mines. It remains to be seen whether or not the coal operators will serve those persons with whom they have contracts at $1.80 when hundreds of others are clamoring for coal at $3.50. If Danville is compelled to take coal in the emergency at the price of $3.50 the city's coal bill will be vastly increased as can be readily seen. The government appears to be powerless to see that contracts are properly maintained during the present chaotic conditions.

TARIFF BILL ALMOST READY FOR PASSAGE

Hon. J. M. Hooker, representative in Congress for the Fifth district, arrived in Danville yesterday afternoon from his home at Stuart, Va., where he has been spending part of the congressional recess. His return to Washington is in order to be present at the reconvening of the House today, after six weeks' rest while awaiting the slower action of the Senate on legislation already passed upon by the House. He was accompanied by his brother, H. Lester Hooker, who recently directed the State campaign of Senator Swanson for renomination and is credited with some share in the splendid majority given the senator.

Representative Hooker in response to inquiries as to when the pending tariff bill would be passed by Congress, expressed his own belief that it would not be enacted before the November election. The Senate will dispose of the bill soon, but the measure will have to go to a conference committee to reconcile the differences between the House and Senate and to enable the House to consider and act upon Senate amendments.

Mr. Hooker also expressed the belief that a civil service examination would be had for the assistant postmaster of Danville.

Coal Situation in This State Is Anything But Bright at the Present

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 14.—The coal outlook for Virginia, as well as for the other States, is anything but bright so long as the strike continues in its present state of effectiveness.

It is going to be difficult for the public utilities, the essential industries and the householders of Virginia to get fuel, and almost if not entirely impossible for the non-essential plants to get coal.

Unless a break occurs very soon in the nation-wide coal strike or production is greatly increased over the volume of the last three months there will be no coal for industries in Virginia not considered entirely essential and they will have to shut down.

No anthracite is being mined now and householders will be unable to obtain any hard coal after the supply now on hand in the yards of dealers is exhausted.

Unless production of coal is greatly increased very soon the entire supply for Virginia will be turned over by Federal Fuel Distributor Spencer to Alexander Forward, State fuel administrator for Virginia for allocation to the essential industries and the householders.

These were the principal features of the coal situation as it affects Virginia brought out a long conference today between a large delegation of Virginia officials and large coal users, headed by Alexander Forward, State fuel administrator for Virginia, with Federal Fuel Administrator Spencer.

The Virginians, about 25 in all, called on Mr. Spencer, the president of the fuel distributor, in an effort to have moment later that it is entirely voluntary quantity of coal allocated to Virginia to supply all the States industrial and domestic needs, to be distributed through Mr. Forward.

They failed entirely in this purpose, but obtained from Mr. Spencer the assurance that he expects to supply the state fuel administrator for Virginia all the coal he declares to be positively essential.

In opening, Mr. Forward explained to Mr. Spencer that the Virginia produces annually between ten and twelve million tons of coal and uses about five-sevenths that amount, and only one-tenth of the coal mined in Virginia, obtaining the remaining nine-tenths from West Virginia.

The people of Virginia, he stated, do not feel just right about seeing train loads and train loads of Virginia-mined coal passing through the State and through the port of Norfolk, to New England where many industries in Virginia have been forced to shut down for lack of fuel. This resentment has been aggravated, he said, by reports that there is a two months supply of coal in the New England States. Mr. Forward urged that a fixed quantity of coal be allotted to Virginia sufficient to supply the State needs.

Mr. Spencer carefully side-stepped this request, asserting that all that is necessary is for Mr. Forward to make a statement that a certain amount of coal is essential for Virginia and he will forward a request to the mines for shipment of that amount. Mr. Spencer admitted a tarry with the operator whether they follow his direction and that there is no law to compel their compliance.

He admitted also, that he is confining such request to what are known as No. 1 and No. 2 priorities, and no others, these priorities are for the public utilities and the householders, essential industries.

Harry F. Byrd, of Winchester, State fuel administrator for Virginia during the world war, said the first step in securing an ample supply for Virginia should be to allot a certain fixed quantity to the State. The records of the fuel administrator made during the war would, he said, show a very careful census of the amount of coal required by the different groups of industries and householders and could be used as a guide in fixing the amount to be allotted.

"I believe, based on my experience as fuel administrator for Virginia during the war," said Mr. Byrd, "the best plan will be to make an allotment to Virginia and permit the state fuel administrator to distribute it according to your plans. The situation is in my judgment, more acute than during the war because now, neither the public utilities nor the various industries nor the public have any coal supply stored up."

Mr. Spencer asserted, in reply, that he expected to supply fuel for the public utilities, the householders and those entitled to class 2 priority, but could not go beyond that at this time. There are no cars available now, he said for supplying coal for those below class 2 priority. Where the question arose as to whether the federal fuel administration would undertake to see that coal contracts are carried out for the large users, Mr. Spencer said that perhaps a little later all contract coal will have also to go through the State distributors.

"We obtain assurance of receiving coal for the householders," asked Mr. Forward.

"If you put in an order with us for coal for householders I feel reasonably certain you will get it for distribution through the state distributors," replied Mr. Spencer.

Mr. Forward then asked if it was expected coal could be obtained for re-drying tobacco, and Senator Swanson and Henry R. Watkins, of Danville, explained that if the fuel was not obtainable when needed it would seriously injure and perhaps ruin the tobacco crop. Mr. Spencer said he believed cases like this should be given special treatment and that the necessary fuel should be made available.

"Do you contemplate distributing anthracite too," asked Congressman Bland of Newport News.

"Not until the miners go to work," replied Spencer. No anthracite is being mined now, there is none stored and none mined is obtainable. Mr. Byrd asked, when money is put up to insure payment for coal ordered through the federal fuel distributor, it must be deposited with a federal reserve bank. He had been told the money must be deposited with the reserve bank in Richmond, Byrd said.

"Any bank will do," replied Spencer.

Henry B. Watkins, of Danville, sought information about obtaining coal that has been contracted for, stating that some large consumers are experiencing difficulty getting the operators to keep up to their contracts. The excuse being given that there are no more and that the coal is being shipped on priority order of the federal coal distributor. Some Virginia concerns it was said have contracts for coal at $1.65 and $1.75 a ton, while the operators are furnishing coal on government orders at $3.50 and $3.75.

Mr. Spencer said his office is trying to have the contract coal sent out by the miners, and said that where the contracts are not kept, that if it was for an essential industry, entitled to class No. 2 priority, the operator should be advised by a letter from the consumer, certified by the state administrator.

Mr. Spencer expressed the fear that very soon it will be found impossible to deliver the coal to the operators and that all will have to pass through the state administrator.

Senator Swanson said the people of Virginia wish to cooperate with the federal administrator and help the people of other states, but Virginia is producing twice as much coal as she consumes and going short of coal with industries shut down, while coal is passing through Virginia to New England where plants are operating and competing with those of Virginia.

When Spencer asked if any industries have shut down in Virginia there was a chorus of "Yes."

"Industries have shut down in Norfolk, including brick plants," said J. Blaney of Norfolk, "while more coal is going over the Norfolk wharves to New England than during the same period last year, last month and in ordinary times."

"We are sending to New England only such quantities as the state administrator there declares to be essential and on No. 1 and No. 2 priority," asserted Spencer. "All you have to do is have Mr. Forward sent us word how much coal you want and you will get it."

But Mr. Spencer admitted his orders would apply only to No. 1 and No. 2 priority classes, which are essential industries only and that the operators could use their option about carrying out his orders. Following the conference with Mr. Spencer the Virginians called on Secretary of Commerce Hoover who has been taking a hand in the coal strike for the president. There the situation was discussed rather generally.

Mr. Hoover appeared very optimistic regarding the coal strike, believing that the strike will be over within two weeks and that the mining and distribution of coal will have returned to normal channels within a month, with no danger for any industry to fear. "Mr. Hoover said to the Virginia delegation, many of these present failed, however, to share his optimism.

The Virginia delegation was joined in Washington by Senator Swanson and Congressman Bland of Newport News, and Harrison of Winchester. Governor Trinkle came to Washington but had to leave early in the morning for Wytheville upon receipt of a telegram that Mrs. Trinkle's mother was in a dying condition.

Those who attended the conference were: Alexander Forward, State fuel administrator for Virginia, Harry F. Byrd, Winchester; Henry B. Watkins, Danville; John B. Locke, Newport News; Harry Hammon and Captain Geo. Evans, Alexandria; J. R. Hobson, Walker, Cottrell, Luke, Drury, Frank G. Louthan, and Carroll D. Hagan, Richmond; C. D. Mount, Lynchburg; Jas C. Martin, Roanoke; E. A. Hulis, Saltville, and Mr. Sumnerman, Petersburg.

Roman Eagle Has Leased Quarters In New Building

At the stated communication of Roman Eagle Lodge, No. 122, A. F. & A. M. in the Elk's lodge-room last night, considerable business of interest to the craft in general and of this lodge particularly was transacted. The matter of interest was action on a proposition understood to have been submitted by the trustees after conference with the officials of the Masonic Building Corporation for the use and occupancy of the spacious lodge-room in the summit of the new Masonic Temple and office building, now nearing completion and being reared for the lodge by the building corporation, a holding company created to finance and direct this big building project.

It is understood that the proposals were satisfactory to the lodge and that the closing of a lease for the lodge-room was authorized. In this connection it was made clear that the lodge would not only have the right to occupy the lodge-room itself for its communications, but would also acquire with it the right to use and occupy the auditorium and the banquet hall on the tenth floor of the building, whenever it desired and no prior engagement had been made therefor. Another important consideration made clear at last night's communication is that in accepting the terms of lease for the lodge-room, the Roman Eagle lodge also acquires the right to sub-let the room to another Masonic body. It is understood that the consideration involved in the lease is a rental of $1,800 per annum. Of course, when the building shall have been paid for by the deduction of the approximately $200,000 of registered stock sold chiefly to members of the craft and in large measure to Roman Eagle lodge Masons, the Masonic Building Corporation will automatically pass out of existence, and the trustees of Roman Eagle will administer the entire property for the lodge, which will then be free of any rent for quarters and will also be one of the most prosperous subordinate lodges in the state jurisdiction or in the entire country, for that matter.

It is also understood and agreed as a result of action by the lodge that the equity or interest of Euclid chapter, Royal Arch Masons and of Dove Commandery No. 7 in the quarters constructed and provided for those bodies is specifically and definitely recognized and becomes a matter of record.

Now that the lease of the lodge-room has been virtually finally closed, the furniture committee of Roman lodge will lose no time in contracting for the furniture and furnishings requisite to the equipment of the room for Masonic uses. It is a foregone conclusion that the equipment of the lodge will be of a quality and standard to comport with the handsome modern fire-proof structure.

SMALL FIRE AT CROWELL PLANT

The vulcanizing department of the Crowell Auto company on Craghead street, was the scene of a fire yesterday morning which for a short time became threatening but with the sprinkler system in operation, all danger was eliminated in a few minutes. It was not necessary to call on city firemen.

An employe had unintentionally poured a keg of gasoline into a tub of water used to submerge tubes to locate holes, and in some unknown way the tub of gasoline and water mixture caught fire. The sprinklers were soon working, and there was little or no danger of the building itself catching fire. The fire was out when the gasoline burned itself out of the water. The damage was only trivial, it was said.

Slain At Cabaret Door, As 10 Shots Fly Off Broadway

Eight Women and Thirty Men Grilled 16 Hours by Police After Ike Smith's murder—Victim Walks Shooting Toward Trio in Hiding.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Ike Smith, No. 192 Waverly Place, a man with a long criminal record, according to the police, was shot at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning as he was leaving La Vie Restaurant, a cabaret, about twenty feet from Broadway. He died an hour later in Roosevelt hospital.

Patrolman Boettch sent a call to the West 47th street station, three blocks away, and a squad of detectives hurried to the scene. Thirty men, among them "Midget" Smith, bantamweight pugilist, and eight women were taken to the West 47th street station, where they were examined by Inspector Coughlin and Assistant District Attorney Dineen until 6 o'clock last evening.

One Man Held.
James F. Redmond, 32, who gave his address as Mills hotel, 36th street and Seventh avenue, was held charged with felonious assault. The others were merely detained.

No official statement was made by the police, but it is believed as Ike Smith left the restaurant, three men fired from behind a showcase in front of the Hilton Clothing Store, on the corner of Broadway and 48th street, across the street from La Vie. The fire was returned, for three bullet holes were found in the show window of the Hilton store.

Smith advanced a few feet toward the middle of the street when he fell, struck by a bullet which passed under his left eye and through his brain, and by another which "creased" the top of his skull. A hole, believed by the police to have been made by a bullet was found in the door of the restaurant behind him. Ten shots in all were fired, the police say.

After Smith died, his fingerprints were taken, and he was identified as Ike Smith, Frank Smith, Frank Nolan, Frank Wallace and Frank Curran. He was arrested, according to the police record, in 1916 as Frank Smith and charged with petty larceny; in 1917, as Frank Smith, charged with robbery; again as Frank Nolan he was arrested on the same charge in 1921; and under the name of Frank Wallace he was arrested later in 1921 and charged with homicide, but later discharged. Recently he was arrested in Hoboken on an unspecified charge.

No Weapon On Victim.
The police found no weapon on Smith, when he was searched at Roosevelt hospital. He had a purple silk handkerchief, marked with the letter "S"; a gold watch, $38 and

Comisky Today Celebrates His 64th Birthday

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—"The Grand Old Man" today is celebrating his sixty-fourth birthday.

He is Charles Albert Comisky, president and owner of the Chicago White Sox, and one of the greatest men in baseball. Builder of what is considered in years gone by one of the greatest baseball clubs in professional ranks, Mr. Comisky, after wrecking his machine following the world series disclosures of 1919, today sees his reconstructed team again fighting in the first division.

Picked by experts from coast to coast this year as a poor second division club the White Sox have provided one of the greatest surprises of the season. The club after getting away to a poor start, suddenly started its climb toward the top of the league, and on June 16, the White Sox were entrenched in third place. The club recently went into a batting slump but again has struck its stride.

Mr. Comisky upset the baseball world in the fall of 1920 when he wrecked his baseball club following disclosures of throwing the 1919 world's series games to the Cincinnati Reds. At that time the Old Roman suspended seven of his star players—Jackson, Cicotte, Williams, Rube, Felsch, Weaver and McMullin—thereby wrecking the club to the extent of one million dollars or more.

Not discouraged by the terrible loss, Mr. Comisky set about at once to build another baseball club. He tried to buy star players from other clubs in his league but with little success. He sent scouts to all parts of the country and gathered every promising player he could into the fold.

One of his moves was the acquisition of the entire infield of the Salt Lake City club of the Pacific Coast league, with the exception of the second baseman. There were Ernie Johnson, Eddie Hurligan and Earl Collins. Mr. Comisky started the baseball world with the announcement that he had bought Willie Kamm, sensational third baseman of the San Francisco club for $100,000. Kamm will report in 1923.

"Commy" was born August 15, 1858. He played ball when he was a teenager years of age. He at one time was a pitcher for the Elgin, Ill. club; later he played third base and first base, but as a first baseman he had no superior in his day. He is the only pitcher who has risen from the ranks to be sole owner of a major league ball club.

Comisky's real baseball career began in 1878 with the Dubuque, Iowa team. In 1882 he joined the St. Louis Browns, then in the American Association, and in 1883 he was manager of the team. In 1883-1886 manager of the team, he defeated the Chicago White Stockings for the championship of the world.

Comisky remained with St. Louis until 1890 when he took charge of the players league club of Chicago. He returned to St. Louis in 1891 and in 1892 went to Cincinnati where he managed the Reds until 1895. During that period in Cincinnati he met Ban E. Johnson, a newspaperman, and the two became fast friends. In 1895 "Commy" placed a Western league team in St. Paul and in 1900 he transferred the franchise to Chicago, where with the aid of Mr. Johnson, the Western League was expanded and became known as the American League with Mr. Johnson at its head.

Under Mr. Comisky's ownership the White Sox, as his team became known, has won two world's championships lost one, and annexed five American League championships.

In the winter of 1913-1914 he and Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants, financed a tour around the world with a large number of ball players, playing the national pastime in Australia, Japan, Manila and London, where King Edward was an interested spectator, and in many other places. The receptions given the world tourists upon their return to New York and Chicago were imposing events.

Mortar Hits Negro Working in Ditch

Allen Johnson, a negro, employed by the Fitzgerald plumbing company was painfully injured yesterday when a small quantity of mortar, falling from the tenth story of the Temple struck him on the arm while excavating the channel for the sewer pipe from the temple into Main street.

While the quantity of mortar was small, it was heavy, and coming from such a height caused a severe blow on the man's arm. He was sent to the office of a physician and was then taken to his home.

It will probably be two weeks before the new pipe operation has been completed. The channel will soon be diverted from the curb diagonally across Main street to a point close to the intersection of Market street.

Wilson Sales Are Heavy At Opening

Leading Eastern Carolina Market Gets Into Action With Over 500,000 Lbs.

Sold—Average Between $25 and $26.

Word was received from Wilson, N. C., this afternoon from a competent source, stating that the market opened there this morning at nine o'clock when six auction houses began the sale of leaf tobacco. Triple sales went into effect at that hour, but at half-past nine o'clock quadruple sales were started. It was estimated after a survey of the floors that between half a million and three quarters of a million pounds of leaf was presented for the opening sale, the average for the day being estimated at between $25 and $26 per hundred pounds.

Many primings were in evidence, the message said. Some good tobacco was knocked out at unusually high prices, these ranging from $40 to $70. It was estimated that fully twenty thousand persons were in the town to witness the opening of the season. It was stated in the message that the farmers appeared to be pleased with the trend of the market on its opening. All of the big firms are represented there and there was activity in competitive bidding from the start.

The Co-operative Marketing Association did not start operations today. As was to be expected in South Carolina, auction houses are getting into action first. The deliveries to the "pool" will probably begin next week.

Rat Plague Due To Coal Strike

FROSTBURG, Md., Aug. 14.—A plague of rats, due to the coal strike, is said to be infesting the Georges Creek region. Old miners estimate that the average of mine houses, 1,000 are idle in this section the number of rats foraging is put at 25,000 or 30,000. The rats have been driven from the mines by hunger.

When the pits were working they were able to subsist on the garbage from the miners' dinner pails and other mine refuse. Some mines have been idle six months and the rats, many of them as big as large kittens, have appeared above the surface.

They are raiding gardens and cornfields and are killing small chickens. On one farm near Shaft one row of corn has been completely destroyed by rats. Chicken raisers report many chickens killed by rats.

The rats, which had confined their depredations to farms and mining villages, have reached cellars on the outskirts of the city. Eckhart, Barton, Hoffman, Grahamsville are among the sections visited. Shooting rats has become quite a pastime with idle miners. One expert marksman has 87 to his credit.

The mine rat grows exceptionally large, reaching almost the proportions of a muskrat, and is very vicious. Old miners tell of the fights put up when cornered in the mines.

Claude Pruitt Is Given a Hearing

Claude Pruitt, who was recently arrested for entering the Union Motor company's place on Union street and stealing tires, casings and spark plugs, and who few days ago was charged with the theft of an automobile from Terrell Shafter in Lynchburg, was held for grand jury action today. The car has been identified and turned over to the Hill City man.

While Pruitt was being given a hearing today, a group of officers were at Yanceyville, where they recovered two more inner tubes, a casing and five additional spark plugs which were stolen from the Danville firm. The clue led to Yanceyville by reason of the fact that Shafter's automobile was found abandoned near that place. The stolen material was recovered and brought back to Danville this morning.

TICKER TALK

(By Thomson & McKinnon.)
There is no appreciable change in the news of the strike situation, while coal strikes seems on eve of settlement indications are the railroad men are no nearer a solution of their troubles. However, railway executives express opinion that strike is nearing an end and also figure to prevail. Some reports tend to show a spreading of walkout among the big four brotherhood and others indicate men returning and train service being resumed. Otherwise, news of market is almost entirely absent. A few earnings reports for the half year are making their appearance and while nothing unusual is shown in the figures, official remarks accompanying statements are in nearly all cases very optimistic as to the future.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Several stocks including International Paper and Famous Players made new highs for the year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Secretary Hoover declared congressional action will be necessary to arrange for the distribution of coal.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The market suggests crystallized public opinion that our labor troubles are nearing an end.

 THE LOSS AT CARMELITE HOUSE.

One can well imagine the sincerity of that grief which reigns in Carmelite House today, the home of the great Harmsworth publishing house, headed by Viscount Northcliffe, who died yesterday at the age of 57 at his London home. The sense of bereavement is personal for the man who made a premier, whose vibrant personality maintained the morale of a sadly-battered nation during the war was not an exalted person but intensely human with the printer's devil considering him his best friend. That, perhaps better than anything else, reveals the scale of his emotions. He was no less at ease in the presence of the king and the king's cabinet than he was at the helm of his great chain of newspapers which, during the past twenty years, have played such a notable part in moulding public sentiment abroad.

Northcliffe stands out readily among the greatest of newspaper publishers. What Pulitzer was to the American press so was Alfred Harmsworth to the British press. Both were swayed by ideals rather than a pure commercial instinct in newspaper publishing and both soared to lofty heights in their profession. With his entrance to the journalistic field at the age of sixteen after being prepared by his father for the bar, a new era in old world newspaperdom began. Harmsworth grasped the American idea in newspaperdom and ventured forth a firm believer in tabloid journalism, that is to say the telling of the news fearlessly and concisely—a plan thoroughly at variance with the staid British idea of conservatism. At the time his influence was beginning to be felt he was surrounded by half a dozen allies with large circulations, either liberal or conservative organs, whose tone was dogmatic in the extreme, newspapers devoting columns to abstract subject, discourses on the arts in high-flown rhetoric. Crime news was handled in the most conservative fashion. The idea prevailed that anything like a shocking expose was vulgar. It was into this dense field that Northcliffe cut his way, putting on the market his now famous "Harpenny Mail," which dealt with the happenings of the world and every-day events—the very thing that the people wanted to read about and in a way in which they could understand it.

In three years the young publisher, virile and courageous, had injected new life into the newspaper world and the Daily Mail had the largest circulation of any paper in the world, considerably over a million copies with chartered trains carrying the paper fresh from the Carmelite presses to every part of the United Kingdom. Vaulting ambition led him far beyond his early dreams, for in time he was to acquire the very fundaments of conservatism, the London Times itself, a paper published first in the seventeenth century and regarded throughout the world as the semi-official mouthpiece of the crown and the government. There was a great stir when the Northcliffe interests in the Times outweighed those of the Walter family to which the Times was passed with each succeeding generation. It was felt that the famous "Thunderer" would become impregnated with the vulgarity of the Mail, but Northcliffe knew his course and he continued to maintain the remarkably high literary standard of that paper and improved it in other ways.

There is no doubt that Northcliffe played a dominant role in the war, his being the part of the man who does things and who looks for no credit. In the early stages of the war it was he who brought about the naming of Kitchener as minister of war, whose virile exposure of the shell shortage on the Western front resulted in Herbert Asquith, then premier, being superseded by Lloyd George, with whom he violently quarreled later and against whom he trained his editorial guns only to find him invincible. As head of the British propaganda, Northcliffe's genius was again exemplified. There was nothing crass about that propaganda. The German record was vividly put before people whose minds were slow in being made up.

His death at fifty-seven is attributable to mental reaction. His mind gave way—of this there is no doubt in the light of his strange behavior just before his physical collapse took place. In his passing the English people lose a powerful influence in their welding. He did more than any other to remove those unfortunate misapprehensions between the two nations.

Miss Penelope Smythe read Dickens, Thackeray, and Scott. She liked this long-ever-stuff with its fine delineation of character. Mrs. Elrod Preston did not care for standard books but she adored Robert W. Chambers, H. G. Wells and other modern writers. Bella and Mabelle, last winter debutantes, never read books but they grabbed the magazines specializing on love stories with spiffy illustrations. Mrs. Jacob Summerville and Mrs. William Levine did not read a thing. They knitted and talked all day long. Most of their conversation began with "They say" or "I have been told." They were all eyes and ears for the slightest movement in this mix of which would furnish a lead towards an exchange of gossip. Everybody has been accounted for except little Mrs. Blossom. Mrs. Blossom never read or gossiped, but she liked to hear the rural carrier made his rounds and read avidly the letters her husband wrote telling her how lonely he was and how he counted the days until her return. She, also, was fond of FICTION.

Verily, such is life!

THE RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by AAMILNE

Antony tried to put himself in Cayley's place—Cayley, when Antony had first discovered him, hammering at the door and crying, "Let me in!" Whatever had happened inside the office, whoever had killed Robert, Cayley knew all about it, and knew that Mark was not inside, and had not escaped by the window. But it was necessary to Cayley's plans—to Mark's plans if they were acting in concert—that he should be thought so to have escaped. At some time, then, while he was hammering the key in his pocket at the locked door, he must suddenly have remembered—with what a shock!—that a mistake had been made. A window had not been left open!

And then Antony's sudden appearance! Here was a complication. And Antony suggesting that they should try the window! Why, the window was just what he wanted to avoid. No wonder he had seemed dazed at first.

Ah, and here at last was the explanation why they had come the longest way round—and yet run. It was Cayley's only chance of getting a start on Antony, of getting to the windows first, of working them open somehow before Antony caught him up. Even if that were impossible, he must get there first, just to make sure.

So he had run. But Antony had kept up with him. They had broken into the office together, and gone into the window. But Cayley was not done yet. There was the dressing-room window! But quietly, quietly, Antony mustn't hear.

And Antony didn't hear. Indeed, he had played up to Cayley splendidly. Not only had he called attention to the open window, but he had carefully explained to Cayley why Mark had chosen this particular window in preference to the office window. And Cayley had agreed that probably that was the reason. How he must have chuckled to himself!

They were outside on the terrace. Bill and Antony, and Bill was listening openmouthed to his friend's theory of yesterday's happenings. It only gave them another mystery to solve.

"What's that?" said Antony. "Mark. Where's Mark? If he never went into the office at all, then where is he now?"

"I don't say that he never went into the office, in fact he must have gone. Elsie heard him." He stopped and repeated slowly, "She heard him—at least she says she did. But if he was there, he came out again by the door."

"Well, but where does that lead you?" "Where it led Mark. The passage." "Do you mean that Elsie's been hiding there all the time?"

Antony was silent until Bill had repeated his question, and then with an effort he came out of his thoughts and answered him.

"We'd better make certain. Could you be a sleuth-hound, Bill—one of those that travel on their stomachs? I mean, could you get near enough to the pond to make sure that Cayley is still there, without letting him see you?"

"Rather!" He got up eagerly. "You wait." Antony's head shot up suddenly. "Why, that was what Mark said," he cried.

"Mark?" "Yes, that's what Elsie heard him say." "Oh, what?" "Yes... I suppose she couldn't have made a mistake, Bill? She did hear him?"

"She couldn't have mistaken his voice, if that's what you mean." "Mark had an extraordinary characteristic voice." "Oh?" "Rather high-pitched, you know, and—well, one can't explain, but—"

"Yes?"

"I think I will, if you don't mind very much, Bill." "Right," he said. "Go on." "Well, we'll just make sure we can get back again, first. It really wouldn't be fair on the Inspector if we got stuck down here for the rest of our lives. He's got enough to do trying to find Mark, but if he has to find you and me as well—"

Antony sat down on the ledge of bricks, swung his feet over, and sat there for a moment, his legs dangling. He flashed his torch into the darkness again, so as to make sure where the steps began; then returned it to his pocket, seized the staple in front of him and swung himself down. His feet touched the steps beneath him, and he let go.

"Is it all right?" said Bill anxiously. "All right. I'll just go down to the bottom of the steps and back. Stay there."

The light shone down by his feet. His head began to disappear. For a little while Bill, craning down the opening, could still see faint splashes of light, and could hear slow uncertain footsteps; for a little longer he could fancy that he saw and heard more than he was alone.

Well, not quite alone. There was a sudden voice in the hall outside. "Good Lord!" said Bill, turning round with a start, "Cayley!"

If he was not so quick in thought as Antony, he was quick enough in action. Thought was not demanded now. To close the secret door safely, but noiselessly, to make sure that the books were in the right places, to move away to another row of shelves—the difficulty was not to decide what to do, but to do all this in five seconds rather than in six.

"Ah, there you are," said Cayley from the doorway. "Hello!" Bill, in surprise, looking up from the fourth volume of "The Life and Works of Samuel Taylor Coleridge." "Have they finished?"

"Finished what?" "The pond," said Bill, wondering why he was reading Coleridge on such a fine afternoon. Desperately he tried to think of a good reason for verifying a quotation—an argument with Antony—that would do. But what quotation?

"Oh, no. They're still at it. Where's Gillingham?" "The Ancient Mariner"—water, water, everywhere—or was that something else? And where was Gillingham? Water, water everywhere.

"Tony? Oh, he's about somewhere. They aren't finding anything at the pond, are they?" "No. But they like doing it. Something of their minds when they can say they've done it."

Bill, deep in his book, looked up and said, "Yes," and went back to it again. He was just getting to the place.

"What's the book?" said Cayley, coming up to him. Out of the corner of his eye he glanced at the shelf of sermons as he came. Bill saw that glance and wondered. Was there anything there to give away the secret?

"I was just looking up a quotation," he drawled. "Tony and I had a bet about it. You know that time—about—er—water, water everywhere, and—er—not a drop to drink." (But what on earth, he wondered to himself, were they betting about?)

"Nor any drop to drink," to be accurate. Bill looked at him in surprise. Then a happy smile came on his face. "Of course."

"Then you've saved me a lot of trouble. That's what the bet was about." He closed the book with a slam, put it back in its shelf, and began to feel for his pipe and tobacco. "I was a fool to bet with Tony," he added. "He always knows that sort of thing."

So far, so good. But here was Cayley still in the library, and there was Antony, all unsuspecting, in the passage. When Antony came back he would not be surprised to find the door closed, because the whole object of his going had been to see if he could open it easily from the inside. At any moment, then, the bookshelf might swing back and show Antony's head in the gap. A nice surprise for Cayley!

"ENTER, THE FLAPPER"

BY ZOE BROCKLEY

FOR the first time, Peggy did not bear up under Olive's withering look.

The shock of Lee's kisses, the realization she had been nearly the cause of injury or death to two, her sense of guilt and the sobering reaction from her high-spirited pace of the evening had shaken her.

She returned Olive's glance with answering defiance—that was all. Olive began speaking, slowly and with careful self-control.

"Ted and Bobby, both you boys, want to lick Lee. Why? Because he kissed Peggy. You did kiss her, didn't you, Lee?"

"Yes," he answered sullenly. "Now stop that!" Olive's cry was to Ted as he made a lunge toward Lee.

"Neither of you fellows would make a move if the other tried to kiss me and I protested, would you?" The bitterness in her voice stung them.

"But Peggy," the girl went on. "All this fussing over a matter of class—she's the Lenox Deans. She comes of the Deans—the family Deans."

"But what kind of a girl is she really? What can a decent boy make of her—and I want you to know Lee is as decent a boy as you are, Bobby."

"You needn't grieve. I'm not saying it because I'm his sister, or because I want to insult you. I mean it; and I respect you, Bob. But Lee works hard for a living. He puts his hand to the plow before everything else."

And please don't think that because he is an actor he's hurt a girl one whit sooner than you or Ted. But to get back to Peggy.

"There are two kinds of girls you boys know—the kind you marry, and the kind you play around with. How's a man to tell? What was Lee or any other man to think of Peggy tonight?"

"Here she came all Brooksided up, nothing missing from the classy clothes to the fancy face, and ready to roll her own and lap up all the liquids."

"She dances well—and she dances close. She is ready for a strolling party and she plays on Lee to make Bob jealous. She carried on wilder than I did."

"To top the climax, she breaks down the car and stalls us here an hour. What for? I don't even know. But I do know Lee didn't have to abduct her to the place we found them."

"She didn't scream any while she was leading him off. You all saw it, didn't you? Well—?"

Olive knew she had got her audience, and her query left a long pause.

"YOU'RE ALL WRONG, YOU FLAPPERS."

awkward for Peggy. The girl knew the danger of a renewed fight was over.

But she was not yet through with Peggy. She turned to her, the anger still glowing from her face. In its place was a smile so sincere that Peggy dared not resent it.

"I tell you you're all wrong, you flappers," she went on. "You're trying to play our game and you can't do it. Nowadays we've all got to be one thing or another."

"A girl who wants a decent boy to marry her has got to be a straight-forward, home-building girl like Winnie. You aren't anything. You succeed only far enough to give boys like Bobby an appetite for girls like me."

"And you aren't home-builders like Winnie. You aren't anything. You fall down between the two of us. Am I right, Bob? Come, speak up!"

SOUTHERN COMMERCIAL CONGRESS WILL MEET IN CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 20-23

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The fifteenth annual meeting of the Southern Commercial Congress will be held at Chicago November 20-22. It was announced today among the chief matters to be considered will be the report of the organization's international trade commission, appointed by Governors of the various states, which will meet in New York Saturday to study conditions in Europe. Immediately after the Chicago convention another commission will leave to accept the invitation of the Mexican government to investigate the possibilities of extending American trade in that country.

AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN ARE TO VISIT POLAND

WARSAW, Aug. 15.—The Polish-American Chamber of Commerce announces that in order to increase trade relations between the United States and Poland, an invitation to visit Poland has been extended to various American trade concerns and financial institutions. In answer to this invitation, 22 American organizations have promised to send delegates to Poland. They are expected to arrive early in the autumn.

VAN LOON TELLS WHAT AILS US

DR. HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON AND HIS TWO SONS, FOR WHOM HE HAS WRITTEN "THE STORY OF THE BIBLE."

(Copyright 1922 by NEA Service.)
BALTIMORE, Aug. 15.—This is what is the matter with us, said Dr. Hendrik Willem van Loon in an interview today.

Dogmatic religion is losing ground everywhere in the world. Democracy is in a bad way everywhere. Then he plans to write a "Story of the eighteenth century."

"The sectarian churches," he says, "have lost their grip on the people, despite universal spiritual curiosity. Dr. Van Loon is used to saying startling things as well as doing them.

Nothing is more pathetic and more foolish than the religious fanaticism of the past. The religious fanaticism of the past was served up with one spiritual cod liver oil.

"As an intelligent man, I can't very well send my boys to a sectarian church or Sunday school to listen to the worn ideas tossed about in those places. As for reading the Bible the Old Testament is hardly a book to give any child as a guide for his conduct unless thoroughly revised."

Van Loon says "The Story of the Bible" was written for his two boys because he didn't want to expose them to shop-worn notions in church and Sunday school.

But all these violent religious antagonisms which are so common in this country today are the result of an attempt to escape from the dull monotony of an industrial environment.

"The world today is tired—physically and mentally. Boredom to most people has become the rule."

Democracy, thinks the historian, is passing through the same crisis as religion. Democratic government exists in America despite democracy's indifference. It will survive.

He thinks some government will be a failure in Europe unless a certain spiritual element is added to mere political theory.

FAMOUS RACE HORSE OF ARGENTINE REPUBLIC

(From the Detroit News)

The most famous race horse that the fine studs of Argentina ever bred was probably Botafogo, a foal born in 1917 among turf followers the world over. He died near Mar del Plata, being only eight years old.

Not particularly fortunate in his parentage, as great racers usually are, he nevertheless became a phenomenon of the track. At two years old he sold for $25,000 at auction, although he was never good looking.

When he raced the horse stretched himself out like a greyhound and made his debut in 1917 and all the classics fell before his amazing speed.

One day when he was not in form and lost to Gray Fox the event was regarded in Argentina as quite a national catastrophe. In a subsequent "revenge race" he defeated his conqueror with perfect ease before the greatest crowd that ever assembled at the Palermo tracks.

HOME AND HUSBAND BEAT LIFE OF THRILLS, SAYS ACTRESS

MRS. EDITH STEVENS

(By ALEXANDER HERMAN)
NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The plain, homely things in life—a home, a husband, a housework—are the things that really count.

"The glamour and tinsel of high life looks alluring from a distance but it proves empty at close range."

Those words come from the lips of Mrs. Edith Stevens, 19, leading actress in New York's most thrilling real-life melodrama, in which figured yacht cruises in tropical waters amid exotic islands, a dash of adventure on the high seas, a man referred to by Assistant District Attorney Alexander Blue as a "bootleg king," jail, a spectacular trial in federal court—and finally acquittal.

Following her acquittal Mrs. Stevens in an exclusive interview with NEA Service, told the only authentic story of her adventures and experiences. "Because," she says, "I want the things I have been through to stand as a warning to girls throughout the country."

"First, here is my advice to young girls based on my experiences: 'Don't marry too young—wait till you know your heart.'"

"Marry only for real love—not to secure a home or to dodge work."

"Don't become tired of what some girls think is the humdrumness of married life. It's the only thing worth while."

"And now my story: 'My parents were well-to-do. They brought me up to enjoy the best of everything. I went to the best of schools, both here and in Europe. I gained culture and polish.'"

"Then mother and father divorced. I had to go to work. That was hard. I sought a way out and found it in marriage."

"I was wed when barely 17. There's where I made my first mistake. I wasn't sure of my heart. All I sought was a way out of my unaccustomed drudgery."

"The man she married was upright and a hard worker, but poor. Today he's ready to take his wife back. But Mrs. Stevens won't go."

"We went to live in a little flat. There was dusting and sweeping and dishwashing. For a time I tried to make the best of it."

"But I kept craving the luxuries I had had."

Mrs. Stevens

"One day I went to the cemetery to visit my grandmother's grave. As I was leaving, an auto mobile almost ran me down."

Mrs. Stevens lowered her eyes for an instant.

"That's when I first met Anthony Cassese. He asked permission to call. I granted it."

It was the beginning. Her dreams of romance, adventure, luxury could all come true—if she would go with him.

"It wasn't his looks that intrigued me," she said the girl, "but his forceful manner and his promises. He told me that he was a wealthy merchant, single. He drew magic pictures of life at Palm Beach."

It was just what she had been craving.

"THERE WAS SWEEPING DUSTING, DISHWASHING. FOR A TIME I TRIED TO MAKE THE BEST OF IT."

ing for. So she told her husband that she was leaving, and went with Cassese, now a fugitive from justice.

"He gave me an apartment on Riverside drive. We went out on the finest hotels. Then he took me on his yacht named after me."

South they cruised, stopping here and there at famous Florida resorts, the height of luxury. Finally they staying at the best hotels enjoying reached picturesque Nassau in the British Bahamas.

But—though Mrs. Stevens has convinced a jury she did not know it—the yacht on which they cruised was, according to federal officials, a rum runner, plying between the British West Indies and Brooklyn. On its return to New York, Cassese was arrested. The girl wasn't involved. But when he went South to secure witnesses for his case, she went with him. This time, they visited another boat.

According to government authorities, it was another rum runner. When it reached port it was seized and Cassese, his chauffeur and Mrs. Stevens were indicted for conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

The chauffeur turned state's evidence. Cassese fled. The girl was left to face the charge alone.

Being unable to raise bail, she was confined in jail for three weeks until her case came to trial.

Wallace E. J. Collins, well-known lawyer, defended her without accepting any fee.

The girl denied any knowledge of bootlegging. Although she had here the story of her experiences with Cassese and had to face her own husband and Cassese's wife in court, she never gave way to her emotions—

Until the jury freed her.

Then she cried—out of happiness. "I'm glad I'm out of it," she said.

"I have had more than enough excitement to last a lifetime. I'm going to my sister's home where I can live quietly and peacefully, as a young girl should."

"I'll never again live a so-called humdrum existence with me."

DATE CHANGES ARE APPROVED

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The National and American leagues in informal discussion here today unanimously approved changes in the dates on which clubs must cut their rosters to 25 men but definite action was withheld temporarily. Barney Dreyfus of the Pittsburgh Nationals suggested changing the date on which trades in players could be made from August 1 to June 15. This change would prevent hoarding of pennant contenders which are no longer able to keep up the fight.

The rule covering barnstorming by pennant winning clubs was amended so that the world's series players can be granted permission to play post-season games only if approved by Commissioner Landis, with the consent of the club of which the petitioning player is a member.

HEAVY GUARD AT NEGROES' TRIAL

CARTHAGE, N. C., Aug. 14.—With three machine guns and half hundred national guardsmen with fixed bayonets, guarding the courthouse, the trial was begun today of the negro charged with an attack on Mrs. A. E. Ketchen, and the shooting of her husband near Carthage on August 4.

When the first witness was called, Judge B. F. Long, presiding, stated that there would be no adjournment until the case had been completed.

JURY IS SELECTED

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 14.—Selection of a jury took up the greater part of the opening day of the trial of Walter Bryant, former taxicab driver of Girard, Ala., when court was adjourned until tomorrow, the state had not completed outlining its contention that Bryant attempted to dynamite Mayor Dimon's home because he had been refused a taxicab license here and had not been paid what he thought sufficient damages for an injury to his automobile.

RECORD BLAST HURLS STONES NEARLY A MILE

COEBURN, August 14.—The contractors who are doing the grading on the Interstate Railroad, but off one of the biggest blasts Saturday that has ever been known in this country. The object was to shoot down a large cliff of solid rock to make a fill for the railroad grade.

Several thousand pounds of explosives were used. A tunnel was cut three ways into the face of the cliff and the explosives put in and sealed up with concrete. The result was highly successful.

Rocks were said to have been thrown three-fourths of a mile. Quite a number of spectators went from Coeburn to witness the scene.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS CONDEMN NORTHCLIFFE

BERLIN, August 14.—German newspapers, commenting on the death of Viscount Northcliffe, are outspoken in their condemnation of the man, as the Allgemeine Zeitungs designates him, "who organized the campaign of German baiting throughout the world."

This paper charges that he systematically built up a world coalition against Germany.

"The blood of millions clings to his hands," says the Pan German Tages Zeitung, which believes that Northcliffe spent billions on propaganda which eventually accomplished the envy of the United States into the world war.

Farmer Calls On Capital and Labor To Unite

LEESBURG, Va., Aug. 14.—(By The Associated Press)—The farmer calls upon capital and labor to cease their petty hickering and resume production, trusting to American institutions and the American sense of fair play to see that justice is done to both of them.

Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture declared in an address here today before the local farm bureau.

Mr. Wallace presented comparative figures to show that the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar had decreased sharply since 1913, "while the wages of the workman, and especially in organized industries, are considerably higher than they were before the war, whether measured in dollars and cents or in purchasing power."

"The purchasing power of the wages of the railway employe in 1921," he continued, "was 51 per cent. greater than in 1913. The purchasing power of the wages of the coal miner in 1921 was 67 per cent. greater than in 1913. The purchasing power of the farm hand who works for wages in 1921 was four per cent. less than in 1913 while the purchasing power of the farmer, himself, was, on an average, from 25 to 45 per cent. less than in 1913."

"In short," Mr. Wallace emphasized, "the farmers of the country numbering almost one third of our entire population, have borne more than the heaviest burden of deflation and they have not struck. They have kept on producing and in the face of extraordinary low prices have this year grown one of the largest crops in our entire history. The farmers believe in law and order. He believes in government. He believes in fairness between man and man. He believes in working hard and producing efficiently."

"But there are too many people who seem to be thinking only of themselves and how they can profit at the expense of the community at large, and especially at the expense of the farmer."

of the farmer. The farmer is sick and tired of this sort of business. He is disgusted with these recurring disputes between capital and labor especially as connected with the essential industries. He sees no reason why such disputes cannot and should not be settled in an orderly and lawful way and without the interruption of service which cost him so dearly.

"If the various groups in this country are determined to prey upon one another and abandon law and order for strong arm methods, the farmer can take care of himself. He can reduce his production of his own needs. He can follow the example of some others and refuse to sell what he produces. But he does not believe in that sort of thing. He knows that such a policy would bring about in this great republic exactly the same sort of conditions that exist in Russia."

SOLDIERS HAVE ADVANCED SOUTH FROM DUNDALK

DROGHEDA, Ireland, Aug. 14.—(By The Associated Press)—The Irish troops who seized Dundalk have advanced south to within four miles of Drogheda. The nationals here are actively engaged in placing the town in a state of defense.

Dundalk was only lightly held by the nationals. Among the killed in the fighting there was Captain Frank Byrne, a well known Free Stater and chairman of the rural council.

Details of the casualties are still lacking, but they were rather heavy. Twenty persons are known to have been wounded. Some reports say that all railway, telegraphic and telephone communication between Dundalk and Drogheda is interrupted.

SPANISH ARMADA GALLEON FOUND IN TOBERMORY BAY

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Salvage operations which are still proceeding, have disclosed a Spanish armada galleon under 10 feet of mud in 60 feet of water in Tobermory Bay, Scotland. Pieces of richly engraved silver plates of Elizabethan design, a bronze Spanish ship bell and quantities of well-preserved oak timbers have already been brought up also other relics. This galleon is historically known to have been sunk in the armada's flight before Drake's pursuing squadrons. The tradition that Philip's regalia and the Admiral's pay chest are aboard has not been confirmed. Bits of Elizabethan glass flags continue to be brought up by the dredger. The greater part of the galleon has still to be uncovered.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA GETS OLD SPANISH RECORDS

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug. 14.—Past civilizations of the southwestern part of the United States, notably those of the cliff dwellers and of the Pueblo Indians, are brought much closer by a collection of ancient Spanish manuscripts just obtained for the University of California by Dr. H. E. Bolton, director of the department of history, from public and private libraries and collections in Spain, South America and Mexico.

Dr. Bolton has just returned from a month's trip to the Pueblo of Acoma with its more ancient neighbor, the Enchanted Mesa, and the still older ruins of cliff dwellings in the canon back of Acoma, on which he verified the report contained in a number of these old manuscripts, as to locations and size of settlements and similar records. The majority of the manuscripts are written in Spanish which is most difficult to translate, but a corps of translators is now at work on them, and it is hoped by the end of the year, to have some of them restored and translated though more than three years will be required in the translation and restoration of all of them. The original lot is being copied, so that the originals may be preserved in glass cases, and only the copies and translations used by students of southwestern history.

With one assistant and two pack-mules, Dr. Bolton visited the ruined cliff dwelling, and the Pueblo settlements atop the mesas of Arizona and New Mexico this year, the fifteenth of his annual trips into the country which once sheltered the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola and other mysterious Indian empires, of which the Spaniards of two centuries ago wrote as they pushed forward in search of them across the southwestern deserts.

There are more than 80,000 separate documents in this collection, which gives the University of California probably the most complete library on southwestern mythology, history and ethnology in the world. The rarest item is a history of New Mexico published in Alcalá, Spain, in 1610 and written by Gaspar de Villagra, a captain in Colonel Onate's army, when the latter conquered the then large Indian city of Acoma. This manuscript is valued at $10,000 and is now being transcribed and translated.

One of Dr. Bolton's important finds of this year is that more than 700 native cliff dwellers are still living among the Pueblo Indians at Acoma, a score of tribes within a tribe as it were, still following their old customs, and living very differently from the Pueblos, who are descendants of the cliff dwellers.

CEILING FALLS IN

The growing disrepair in the city courthouse was further emphasized yesterday when soon after a good sized section of plaster from the ceiling of the hall fell to the ground and another section fell from the ceiling of the mayor's private office. The moist atmosphere of the past few days is believed to be responsible for the damage done.

THE SOFT COAL OPERATORS WITHDRAW FROM MEETING

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—(By The Associated Press)—Withdrawal of soft coal operators controlling an annual output of five million tons from the joint wage conference here with miners came tonight on account of the miners refusal to accede to a demand for arbitration to settle future disputes.

The withdrawal, however, did not disrupt the conference, but it was announced that it would be broadened so as to include operators from any of the soft coal fields. The operators who quit were Michael Gallagher, president of the Pittsburgh Vein Operators Association of Ohio, who represented the Mahanah company in the conference and S. H. Robbins and W. L. Robinson, who represented the Toughsheney and Ohio Coal company. T. K. Maher of this city, was selected by the joint sub-scale committee, to act as chairman in the place of Mr. Gallagher. The split in the conference, which came during sessions of the sub-scale committee, brought to a close a day of uncertainty. For three days, Mr. Gallagher, supporting a demand for compulsory arbitration, and President

John L. Lewis of the miners, who was unalterably opposed to the demand, had been unable to reach an agreement. All provisions, except this one, had been agreed to by them, but all the work must be covered again in drafting a contract because of new operators being called into the conference.

While making no progress toward a settlement in the soft coal negotiations, the day was marked by an exchange of messages between Mr. Lewis and S. D. Wagner, spokesman for the anthracite operators that was regarded as forecasting an early settlement. Mr. Wagner said the operators would renew the wage contract that expired at the beginning of the strike last April 1 and Mr. Lewis responded that this promise "augurs well" for a settlement. The conference will begin at Philadelphia on Wednesday. The change that came tonight in the personnel of the soft coal conference will result in the union's policy committee meeting tomorrow to decide the question of permitting a settlement with any operators, who are willing to close negotiations immediately.

A GOOD OPENING

(Greensboro Record.)
The Co-operatives have opened up the tobacco season in South Carolina and a few of the southeastern North Carolina markets very auspiciously. More in cash advances than was received for the entire crop last year is reported by some of the farmers. In addition to cash advances, they receive participation receipts that entitle them to more money when the pooled tobacco is sold by the association.

The amount received is the test of the co-operative system. This season will see whether it pays to sell co-operatively. The opening in other North Carolina points will be interesting but not less than the closing when the payment of receipts are put in for cash. By that time the tobacco people will know whether they can do what the raising the money, the peach and truck growers have done. Better prices for tobacco will do not only the producers of the weed but the whole tobacco country. It means more for everybody in the tobacco country and for others outside of it who draw from those sections.

$20,000 OF TOBACCO LOST BY HAIL ON A SINGLE FARM

DANBURY, Aug. 14.—The Danbury Reporter this week says that hail storms in different sections of Stokes county have seriously damaged ripening tobacco fields. The Dillard section, Lenoirville, Walnut Cove and Westfield communities have been visited.

The greatest destruction is reported from the area near Walnut Cove, where Samuel Harston, large landowner, sustained complete loss of 75 acres in tobacco. Mr. Harston estimates his damage at $20,000. He had insurance. Corn was also cut in "shreds."

Many farmers of this section of Sauratown township were more or less damaged some of them being injured some not.

Very severely S. L. Venable, Wheeler James and others suffering serious losses.

The Bank of Stokes County at Danbury has received hail checks for sufferers to the amount of $3,525.52.

DEMAND THAT ARMED GUARDS BE WITHDRAWN

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 14.—Members of the "big four" brotherhoods working into and out of this city are understood to have adopted resolutions tonight demanding the armed guards be withdrawn or that they will walk out in three days. While the resolutions were not made public their import was given out by several leaders who explained that they did not consider it fair to make the text of the resolutions known before they had been given to the railroad managements. The resolutions involved according to spokesmen are the Seaboard Air Line, Atlantic Coast Line, Southern, and Florida East Coast railway. The spokesmen refused, however, to discuss the extent of a walkout under their jurisdiction.

BRITAIN SEEKS TO INCREASE HOME TRADE

LONDON, August 14.—The need for the development and expansion of trade within the confines of the British Empire has been stressed recently by a number of public speakers.

Among these is Andrew Bonar Law, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, who at a recent luncheon to the visiting members of Dominion parliaments said:

"I am not an advocate of complete indifference to the wreck of Europe, but I do say our first duty is to develop our own heritage, and in that will be found the way to safety and prosperity."

"The war could not have been won without the help of the self-governing dominions. It will be one of the tragedies of this world if, after this co-operation, we should not be closer knit in the ends of a common empire."

"The whole of Central Europe, from the commercial point of view, has gone. If we have to wait for the hope of recovery until order is restored in that part of the world, it will be a black outlook for this country."

"Before the war our total exports to Germany, Russia, and the whole of Central Europe amounted to far less than half of what was sent to our self-governing dominions. It is to them we must look."

The Association of British Chambers of Commerce at its quarterly meeting in London passed a resolution urging on the government the need for a convention at an early date of an Imperial Conference at which the government, the dominions, and commerce and industry should be represented, in order to consider the development of empire resources.

The government has decided to meet half the cost of sending all approved emigrants to the dominions. This will cost it about 3,000,000 pounds annually.

"Great as has been the part of the British Empire," said Lord Birkenhead, Chancellor of the Exchequer, referring to this measure, "it will be as nothing to its future if the wisdom of our statesmen in all parts of the empire is equal to the gigantic task that awaits them."

NO AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 27 PLANNED

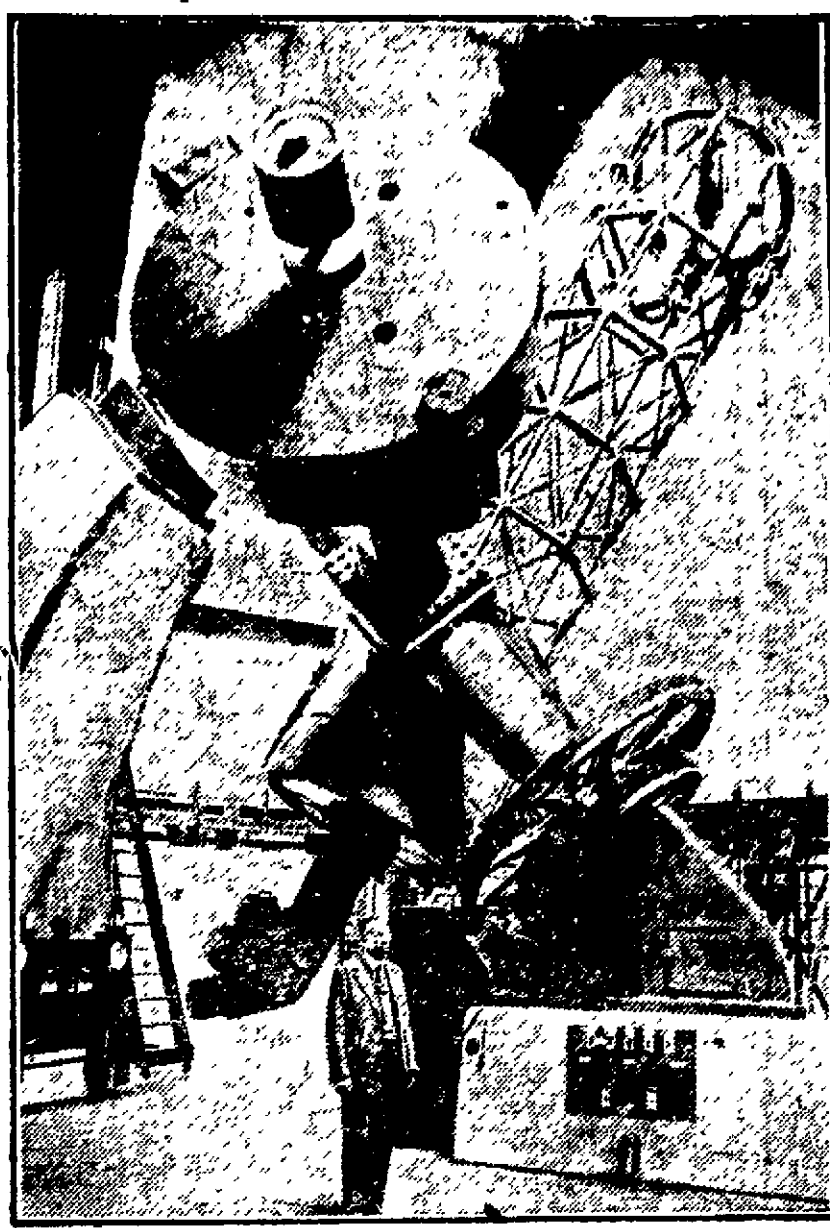

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 14.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Mexican government has no plans for submitting a project to Congress looking toward amendment of article 27 of the Mexican constitution, as demanded by the American legation in the department.

General Calles, chief of the cabinet, told newspapermen tonight.

If such a request was made of the legislators, he added, it would be because the government was convinced such a step was necessary and sit as a preliminary to recognition.

"You may deny categorically that such a project is contemplated," said General Calles. "To date no such initiative is planned. When such a step is projected it will be when the government deems it prudent and necessary."

SOY BEAN IS A MAJOR CROP

WASHINGTON, August 14.—The soy bean is rapidly taking a place as a major crop in the farming systems of the corn belt, replacing oats to a considerable extent and taking part of the corn acreage. Says the Department of Agriculture, although primarily used for forage, pasture and ensilage, the growing of seed during the last few years has become a very profitable industry. The production of seed has now increased to the point where the supply greatly exceeds the demand for planting.

County soy bean associations, growers, county agents and extension officials, notably in Illinois and Indiana, have concerned themselves in the development of a commercial outlet for the seeds. It is noted. Several mills in those states have become interested in the possibilities of that bean as a source of oil and meal.

Two mills in Illinois have planned to use about 750,000 bushels this season. It has been reported to the department, while other mills are planning on a smaller scale.

The department inspectors have found considerable acreage put to growing the soy bean in the northern and corn belt states, showing a considerable increase. The possibilities of using the bean for oil and meal are ascribed by officials as at the commercial outlet affords the grower another cash crop as corn and wheat, it is said.

The various ways in which the soy bean and its products are utilized in the United States indicate a ready market for the commercial production of soy bean seed, the department circular declares. Soy bean oil is largely used in the manufacture of soaps and paints, and is also used in the manufacture of hard and butter substitutes, rubber substitutes, linoleum and printing ink, and as a salad oil. The cake or meal is a superior cattle feed and of high value for human consumption.

FEDERAL COAL MINE SEIZURE IS APPROVED AT CONFERENCE

ST. PAUL, MINN., Aug. 14.—Government operation of railroads, seizing the producing mines and if necessary government seizure and operation of all the coal mines in the United States will have the approval of the governors of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Iowa, according to resolutions adopted at the conference of governors in St. Paul last night and forwarded to President Harding.

ILLINOIS OPERATOR QUITS COAL RANKS

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The United Electric Coal Company, owning mining property in Ohio and Illinois, has thrown its Illinois tonnage into the four state wage conference at Cleveland it was authentically reported here this morning.

The capacity of the company's Illinois mines was given as between 800,000 and 1,000 tons. This is the first reported break in the stand taken by the Illinois Operators Association.

HEAVY VOTE IN MISS. PRIMARY

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 14.—With prospects of fair weather over a large portion of the state, indications tonight were that the heaviest vote ever polled in Mississippi would be cast tomorrow in the Democratic primary, in which a successor to Senator James I. Vardaman, of Jackson, former Representative Hubert Stephens, of New Albany, and Miss Belle Kearney, of Flora, are seeking nomination. The principal issue in the campaign has been on charges that Vardaman has deserted the Democratic party.

The three candidates tonight were making confident claims of victory but the general impression among conservative political observers was that a second primary would be necessary.

Drafting Of New Coal Wage Scale At the Conference

CLEVELAND, O., August 14.—(Associated Press.)—Drafting of a new wage scale was begun tonight at a closed conference of soft coal operators and miners here.

Signing of a contract bringing to an end in part the strike that began last April 7 was predicted by those coming from the conference.

All essentials for the contract were understood to have been approved, and the actual framing of the agreement was left to a sub-committee. Most of the other conferees, however, remained behind the closed doors of the conference room. Completion of the contract during the night was predicted by those coming from the conference.

The agreement, it was said, would provide for re-establishment of the wage scales that were effective last April 1, and the next contract would run until March 31.

It was also decided to establish a fact-finding commission of advisory powers for dealing with future negotiations in the soft coal industry. The commission would be chosen by miners and operators, with the personnel to be approved by the president.

Operators controlling approximately 60,000,000 ton annual production were represented in the conference. Their mines were understood to be in central Pennsylvania, western Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, northern West Virginia and Michigan.

Under the decision of the conference, it was understood that any soft coal operators anywhere in the country might become parties to the agreement, the re-opening of their mines to follow immediately. These operators, it was said, might sign the agreement as individuals or by state or district organizations.

ENTENTE LEADERS TRY TO RECONCILE VIEWS ON GERMANY

LONDON, August 14.—The Christian Science Monitor correspondent learns that an informal conference is now proceeding between the British, French and Belgian delegates, with a view to finding a bridge between the British and French positions regarding German reparations. It is considered likely that a full conference will be held this afternoon. A seasoned statement of the British delegation's views has been circulated to the other delegates, but has not been published yet. It is

Poor Richard Said—

A PENNY saved is a penny earned." In his day, pennies were as large as our quarters. Yet all the pennies in the world wouldn't have taken Poor Richard to a movie, bought him a flivver, or paid his street car fare. The pennies of a hundred years ago were not as big in buying power as those of today.

But Poor Richard's advice is still good. And it is no less valuable when applied to dollars instead of cents. Every year you spend a large proportion of the money you earn. So much for clothing. So much for shoes. So much for things to eat, house furnishings, garden seeds, tools and what not.

There's just one way to save money in making your purchases. Know what you want before you buy. Read the advertisements.

BAN ON MARRIAGE OF CLERGYMEN AND BISHOPS REMOVED BY RUSSIANS

MOSCOW, Aug. 14.—All restrictions on marriage for bishops and clergymen have been removed by the "living church congress" of the recently formed soviet church, whose members are working to have the new church take the place of the old orthodox church.

Among the "red clergy" as the clergymen of the new church are called, the orthodox church is referred to as the "dead church." It is contended by the "red clergy" that by permitting marriages clergymen are brought into closer contact with the community. Regarding monks, the congress decided that the higher monks may disregard their vows and marry, still retaining their positions.

ANGRY? WORK WILL CURE
IT, SAYS THIS EXPERT

(By PHILIP J. SINNOTT)
SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 15.—"Keep your temper if you can. But if you DO get angry, go into action! Saw wood, pile bricks, do something. It's good for your health."
Dr. Walter E. Cannon, of Harvard medical school's department of physiology, thus summarized at a recent meeting results of his studies of physiological effects of powerful emotions.

"If the emotions of rage or fear overwhelm us, our bodies are put on a war footing when there may be no war to be fought. We are ready for action—so the best thing is action. Attack something—wood piles, an unbeaten carpet and the like are safest to pick on."

"Down through the ages nature has endowed vertebrate animals with in- or running facilities in time of voluntary mobilization of bodily fight-fear or anger. Through these, the body ceases all functioning not connected with the fight or flight for protection."

Further preparation of the body noted in such times of stress is secretion of strength-giving fluids into the blood by certain glands.

"This mobilization of the bodily forces was helpful when primitive man battled for his life with wild animals or other men," Dr. Cannon continued. "But what was beneficial then may be harmful now."

"Civilization has not eliminated our proneness to fear or rage. Such functions are not governed from the cerebral hemisphere, so once they are set in motion, they cannot be checked."

"Anger prepares the body for hard work. Let hard work be the outlet for the mood. It utilizes the effec-vescing energy, accomplishes something, exercises the body, and at the same time, diverts the mind from the cause of anger.

"There is one method better than hard work, however. That is letting nothing drive you into a rage especially if you cannot do anything to better conditions by your augmented powers."

TWO KILLED, FIVE INJURED
AS SPEEDING CAR HITS WALL

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 14.—Ending a night at a dance at a Cuban Club here with a wild drive along Franklin street, just before dawn this morning, two occupants of the large touring car were killed and five others badly injured when the machine smashed into a concrete retaining wall at the end of Franklin street and was reduced to junk.

The dead are Earl Reyniersen, pastry cook at a local cafeteria and Lawrence Diaz, traveling salesman for the cigar factory of which his father is owner.

Those injured were J. H. Pritchett, traveling salesman of Jacksonville; Cyrus Frost, employee of an electric company; Henry Boggs, clerk with Tampa Electric Company; D. S. Brown and E. P. Fariss, driver of the car, who is an automobile distributor.

Reyniersen was killed instantly and Diaz died an hour after reaching the hospital, where all the injured were taken.

Pritchett's injuries consisted of bruises and contusions on the head, back and hips, and probable internal injuries, according to physicians. He was conscious only at intervals during the day.

En route, gathering up the party at a downtown drug store about 4 o'clock this morning started north on Franklin street. Four blocks from the starting point, two policemen who watched the speeding machine said it was making more than forty miles an hour. Further out, witnesses declared the car was speeding at the rate of at least seventy-five miles an hour. Approaching the point where Franklin street ends at Oak Avenue with a retaining wall in the line of the street and a right angle turn into Oak avenue, Fariss, driving the car, attempted to slow down, and when the car skidded and smashed into the wall, turning completely over and landing partly in the yard behind the wall.

STRIKES FORCE PRESIDENT TO FOREGO HIS VACATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Once the rail and mine strikes are settled, the president and Mrs. Harding will leave Washington for a rest.

The news calls to mind that not in many years has the nation's executive remained in the Capital throughout the summer.

Most of the Cabinet is now out of Washington; virtually all of the Diplomatic Corps has left, and the president and Mrs. Harding are almost alone with the Senate—remaining on the job.

When Mr. Harding came into office his early travels led to the belief that he would be away all of the summer months. The rail and coal strikes effectively doomed any vacation idea, although citizens throughout the nation placed their homes at the disposal of the first couple of the land.

Both of them have been concentrating on the business in hand. Mrs. Harding works and thinks with the president on his major problems constantly. She has even abandoned the usual White House social season and limited her social activities.

The president, meantime, has been given his first real taste of the trails of the White House. A genial man by nature, who thoroughly enjoys recreation, he has almost given up his favorite pastime on the links.

The President's usual hours, more or less laid down by his secretaries, have been abandoned. His eating has become irregular and at times almost uncertain. His sleeping has been interfered with by conferences.

Mrs. Harding, in her natural anxiety for her husband's welfare, has abandoned everything save arranging for his comfort. As President's lives go, the present first family has had rather a hectic time of it this summer. Both will be glad for a little rest when the strike situations have cleared.

Nugget Hurts Woman;
Thought to Be Meteor

SUNBURY, Pa., Aug. 14.—Mrs. William Gilham, residing in an apartment over the office of Justice of the Peace George W. Schultz, of Shamokin, is suffering from a painfully bruised arm, caused by a small piece of metal, supposed to have been a piece of a meteor, that came from the skies and crashed through the window, striking her on the arm as she lay in bed.

The piece of metal has been examined by a number of persons familiar with metallurgy. It is oval shaped, about two inches in length, an inch wide and a ninth in diameter. It has been preserved.

TIGERS KILL EIGHT

MEXICO CITY, August 15.—A pack of tigers, driven from their mountain lairs by hunger, attacked three families who were travelling from Puerto Vallarta to Mascota, State of Jalisco, yesterday, killing three women, two men, two small boys and a baby, according to El Universal Grafico.

Native who went to the rescue fought the tigers, killing one of them. The remainder escaped to the mountains.

Trip Abroad
Girls' Canning
Club Prize

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—A three months trip to Europe for four country girls, with all expenses paid, is the prize that has just been announced for winning members of the canning club of the United States. These clubs are conducted by the agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture. The American Committee of Devastated France is providing the prize trip for which 55,000 girls the country over are expected to compete this summer and fall.

The plan, provides for the usual local county and state elimination contests conducted by the State agricultural college extension departments. Following that there will be five interstate or sectional contests held at convenient expositions, namely: Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Mass.; South Eastern States Exposition, at Atlanta, Ga.; Interstate Fair and Exposition, Sioux City, Iowa; Colorado State Fair, Pueblo, Colorado; and the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, Portland, Ore.

The first and second highest scoring teams at each sectional contest will compete for national honors during the week of the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, December 2 to 9.

At this contest the honors and prize trips will be awarded on the basis of efficiency in demonstrating canning, in judging canned products and by the home canning record.

The unit will leave next June and will spend three months in Europe; eight weeks of the time will be spent in visiting places of interest in France and in demonstrating canning in the devastated regions under the supervision of the American Committee for Devastated France and the French Department of Agriculture.

The purpose of the contest according to G. L. Noble, secretary of the Committee on Boys and Girls Club Works is to encourage thrift in the conservation of all available products during the season of abundance.

Emphasis through canning the importance of a constant, well rounded diet that will make for farm and rural home efficiency, to stimulate a greater interest in canning clubs and boys and girls club work, and to determine prize winners worthy of a trip to Europe and capable of demonstrating to the French people.

It is estimated that the competitors will can $675,000 worth of fruits and vegetables for this year in preparation for the contest.

A committee of State leaders and members of the States Relation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture have been collaborating with the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work in preparing the rules and regulations of the contest so that they will be satisfactory to every State in the Union.

The following State leaders are acting as chairmen of each sectional: Miss Lois P. Dowdle, Assistant State Agent, Georgia; Southeastern section, Miss Maude Sheridan, State Club Leader, Colorado; Rocky Mountain Southwestern section, Miss Elsie Traub, Assistant State Leader, Connecticut; Northeastern section, Miss Helen Cowgill, Assistant State Leader, Oregon; Pacific Northwest section.

Three leaders who will train the winning teams will accompany the party, two coming from the state having the champion team and one from the state having the near champion team.

In order to be eligible, the contestants must be sixteen years of age or more by January 1, 1923 as well as to be members of a bonafide canning club for 1922, organized and directed by a government extension agent. Forty or more states of the Union will be represented in this contest which is the largest ever conducted for the boys and girls club work in the United States in point of prize money and in the number of competitors. The 55,000 canning club girls are a part of 600,000 farm boys and girls in the clubs demonstrating the better farm and home practices under the supervision of the agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture.
